14:00 Parallel Sessions: Key Policy Recommendations of the Think7 Task Forces

Task Force: International Cooperation for the Global Common Good

Location: House 1, Plenary Room

For most of the world's countries, especially developing countries, the SDGs and the broader Agenda 2030 frame a key marker of global cooperation, especially since they were agreed by all countries at the United Nations in 2015. In this context, the G7 needs to mobilize its full political support in order to change course toward success.

Speakers:

- Jürgen Zattler, Director General, Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) (virtual)

Task Force: Social Cohesion, Economic Transformation and Open Societies

Location: House 1, Room 121/122

Flow-over Room 120 with dial-in option

In this session, universal social protections will be looked at from different angles: The panel will discuss the need for G7 countries to update their domestic social welfare systems and realign their tax systems accordingly, the responsibility of G7 countries to look beyond their own horizon, and micro-level approaches. These questions will be discussed within a larger context: It is clear that no less than a systemic transformation will be needed to enable human well-being within planetary boundaries. What are the social prerequisites that need to be met – and what is the role of the G7 to meet these prerequisites domestically and to support lower-income countries in meeting them?

Speakers:

15:15 Break to move to plenary room

15:35 Plenary Session: What should the G7 do to foster Cooperation with the G20? (hybrid)

The G7 is a coordination forum for the richest economies of the world and also serves to prepare their G20 position. The G20, by nature, takes a more global perspective, including a wider variety of income levels and governance systems – and where naturally also the national interests are more diverging across the 20 partners. Where is the common ground? What goals and values are shared by all countries? What role and responsibilities do the G7 and G20 have in the global international community? How can conflicting transformations be avoided and how can the G7 and G20 foster a broad global alliance, including the buy-in of countries beyond the Groups of 7/20, in the face of global challenges?

Speakers:

- Head of Sherpa Office, Federal Chancellery
- Sachin Chaturvedi, Director General, Research and Information System for Developing Countries (RIS)
- Bambang Brodjonegoro, Chairman, Indonesian Forum Foundation

The development of the African continent often had a special place on the G7 agenda in the past. Furthermore, the German government used other formats, such as the G20, to launch important initiatives towards African nations. This session will re-assess the relations between Africa and the G7 during these testing times that are characterised by a global pandemic, the war of Russia against Ukraine and rising geopolitical tensions.

Keynote: Is Winter Coming? Upheaval in the World Economy (hybrid)

Following the lengthy COVID-19 crisis, the global economy was expected to gradually recover in 2022 and 2023. Now, however, Putin's war against Ukraine stands to exacerbate inflationary stress and thus hamper global growth. The United Nations Global Crisis Response Group fears this war will trigger a three-dimensional crisis on food security, energy supply, and finance. The topical keynote by UNCTAD Secretary-General Rebeca Grynspan will be followed by a Q&A session on the opportunities for high-level international cooperation and how developing countries can be better supported in these crises.

Speaker:

- Rebeca Grynspan, Secretary General, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) (virtual)

Moderator: Stormy-Annika Mildner, Executive Director, Aspen Institute Germany

9:30 Break to move to breakout rooms

9:40 Parallel Sessions

The Future of Development Cooperation (hybrid)

Location: House 1, Plenary Room

The 2030 Agenda and its SDGs have successfully set a normative framework for global cooperation, including development cooperation. Yet, the implementation of this agenda is characterised by a highly dynamic international context (uncertainty as a strategic challenge), power struggles (return of geopolitical confrontation) and unresolved contestations (competing development cooperation norms). For many decades, the OECD approach was the predominant narrative in this regard. However, the rise of South-South cooperation is introducing a distinct concept of development cooperation. The changing context is relevant for all areas of development cooperation, as it impacts the narratives of development cooperation (why?), the strategies (how?) and operational approaches (what?).

Speakers:

- Annalisa Prizzon, Senior Research Fellow, Overseas Development (ODI)
- Philani Mthembu, Executive Director, Institute for Global Dialogue (IGD) (virtual)
- Debapriya Bhattacharya, Distinguished Fellow, Centre for Policy Dialogue (CPD)

Flow-over Room 120 with dial-in option

The T7 task force on global health brings together epidemiological, medical, social science, and policy expertise in order to provide a sound basis for science policy dialogues on the current pandemic, as well as the strengthening of preventative health infrastructures. Particular attention is paid to globally diverse health challenges and infrastructures across regions, income levels, and social groups. Through a conscious reflection of the role of the G7 in global health governance, contributions are being made for facilitating the dialogue with other international governance formats, in particular the G20.

The roles of and expectations towards think tanks are subject to significant changes in light of an increasingly contested geo-political system and domestic settings. 12:00 Parallel Sessions

Supporting Democracy

Location: House 1, Room 121/122

Flow-over Room 120 with dial-in option

The session discusses the interrelation between inequality and democracy. It will highlight how inequality affects democratic processes and how G7 members can support democracy in a way that minimizes this threat. The sessions aim is twofold: On the one hand, it analyses why so many citizens in G7 countries are frustrated with democratic institutions and which role inequality plays in this regard. On the other hand, it aims to unpack how the nexus of democracy and inequality affects countries in the Global South and how the policies and politics of G7 member states can be impactful in these contexts.

Speakers:

- Julia Cagé, Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, Science Po Paris
- Tessa Dooms, Director, Rivonia Circle

Moderator: Tina Blohm, Global and European Policy Unit, Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung (FES)

Feminist External Policy

Location: House 2, Room 102

With Germany's announcement to pursue a feminist foreign and development policy, the G7 has now three states pursuing a feminist external policy. The panel will discuss why we need a feminist approach in order to tackle the current global challenges and what the G7 can do in order to support feminist aims.

Speakers:

- Jenny Mathers, Senior Lecturer in International Politics, Aberystwyth University
- Carla Dietzel, Gender Advocacy Consultant, Care Germany
- Verena Wiesner, Desk Officer, Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development

International Trade Cooperation

Location: House 1, plenary room, Chatham House Rules

International trade can and has acted as a key generator of economic growth, employment, and prosperity. However, global trade is in a state of flux: In recent years, the re-regionalization and renationalization of value chains has gained momentum, particularly in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, and is being further fuelled by the power struggle between the United States and China. The geopolitical environment is changing rapidly, and the WTO is in deep crisis, with the outcome of the next Ministerial Meeting being rather uncertain. In this session, we want to discuss how global trade is changing and which reforms are necessary to ensure a healthy multilateral trading system.

Speakers:

- Wolfgang Niedermark, Member of the Executive Board, Federation of German Industries (BDI)
- Jeffrey J. Schott, Senior Fellow, Peterson Institute for International Economics (PIIE)
- Marianne Schneider-Petsinger, Senior Research Fellow, Chatham House

Moderator: Stormy-Annika Mildner, Executive Director, Aspen Institute Germany

Towards a New Understanding and Measurement of Prosperity

Location: House 2, Room 601

Our future depends on our ability to transform our economic system – to take stewardship in transforming the system in accordance with our collective goals. This requires, first and foremost, reliable measures of progress so that we can evaluate if we reached our economic, social and environmental goals. Without a new definition of prosperity and economic growth, it will be impossible to effectively combat pandemics, climate change or global poverty. This Panel will discuss Questions like: What are the measures of success that should guide the politics on wellbeing? What is needed so that governments implement and use these indicators? What is the role and leverage of the G7 to promote a new understanding and measurement of prosperity?

Speakers:

- Richard Wike, Director, Pew Research Centre
- Lara Fleischer, Policy Analyst, Organisation for Economic Co-Operation and Development (OECD)
- David Collste, Post-Doctoral Researcher, Planetary Boundaries Research Lab, Stockholm Resilience Centre
- Stefan Profit, Deputy Director General, Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action

14:00 Parallel Sessions

International Tax Cooperation

Location: House 1, Room 121/122

Flow-over Room 120 with dial-in option

Offshore wealth has become a first-order political and economic problem, as it is draining resources in all countries, worsening inequalities and damaging public trust. Lacking transparency in the international financial system is a major challenge to track all hidden wealth. G7 and G20 countries can play a decisive role by committing to address this issue, including by developing and deploying a rapid plan to implement a Global Asset Registry. This would link all national beneficial ownership registries around the world. This panel discussion will address the current debate on global tax avoidance and discuss policy proposals to implement a Global Asset Registry to tackle tax havens once and for all.

Speakers:

- Ricardo Martner, Member of the Independent Commission for the Reform of International Corporate Tax
- Anna-Maija Mertens, Executive Director, Transparency International Germany

Moderator: Sarah Ganter, Global and European Policy Unit, Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung (FES)

Just Transition

Location: Plenary Room

The session focuses on just transitions, presenting two different perspectives. One perspective considers the decarbonisation of the energy sector as a whole, exploring how to ensure a just transition (for both workers and consumers), especially through the use of different social protection mechanisms. Overall, it is argued that it is possible to make energy transitions just, but proper design of policy mixes combining socio-economic and climate policies are needed. The second perspective zooms in the coal sector, laying out key social and community impacts to consider when decommissioning coal assets. Based on experience from World Bank operations and industrialized countries, recommendations are made for an approach to the coal transition that promotes social sustainability and inclusion.

Speakers:

- Fabian Lange, Federal Ministry of Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ)
- Daniele Malerba, Senior Researcher, German Development Institute / Deutsches Institute für Entwicklungspolitik (DIE)
- Margaret Arnold, Global Lead, Social Dimensions of Climate Change, World Bank

15:00 Coffee Break

15:20 Plenary Session: How can the G7 deliver for today's Youth and Future Generations? (hybrid)

The panel brings together young thought leaders to reflect on the impact of current policy concepts and initiatives on the life of future generations and the possibilities of youth engagement in current international forums like the G7. They will discuss, amongst others, what barriers there are in existing forums and institutions like the G7/G20 for youth engagement to have an impact and whether and how these barriers can be overcome. Another important topic will be how it can be ensured that the interests of future generations are represented and how intergenerational dialogue can be fostered.

Speakers:

- Carolina Claus, Co-Chair Y7 Germany
- Sophie Daud, Y7 UK and Future Leaders Network
- Gina Cortes Valderrama, Climate Activist, Young Global Changer Ambassador

- Adama Bamba, African-German Leadership Academy, AU Commission Youth Advisory Board

Moderator: Ole Spies, Program Lead Young Global Changers, Global Solutions Initiative Foundation

16:30 Keynote: International Cooperation as Part of the “Zeitenwende”

International development cooperation forms an important part of the external relations of G7 countries. It is thus also affected by the fundamentally changed international environment as a result of Russia’s war against Ukraine. In his keynote, State Secretary Flasbarth reflects on the implications of the so-called “Zeitenwende“ (a fundamental turning point) for international cooperation and on the prospects of the G7 Elmau Summit.

Speaker:

- Jochen Flasbarth, State Secretary, Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development

Moderator: Anna-Katharina Hornidge, Director, German Development Institute / Deutsches Institut für Entwicklungspolitik (DIE), Co-Chair Think7 Germany
